Mallory Steamer Lost at Sea.

Miss Mand L. Wheeler, a young lady seventeen years of age, the daughter of Mr. J. H. Wheeler of this city, was among the passengers of the steamer City of Houston, h sailed from New York for Galveston on Saturday last. Fearing on account of the recent storms that disaster had befallen the ship, Mr. Wheeler yesterday telegraphed to Galvestod for information concerning it and received in reply the following:

"The steamer City of Houston foundered on the morning of the 23rd. All hands saved by the steamer Margares Signed:

Electricity as a Motor Power in the Material Universe.

Only about ten or fifteen person were present last evening to hear a lecture well worthy, richly deserving, in fact, an audience of as many thousand. The few present enjoyed it to the utmost, however, and at its conclusion made up as far as possible in protestations of hearty appreciation for the paucity of attendance, which was, justly, a matter of general humiliation and regret. On this point, however, we would fain hope that our citizens will do themselves more credit next time. As regards Dr. Kavanangh's theory of electricity, it is alike new and startling, upsetting completely many ideas and doctrines that have long been taught by different schools of philosophy, and throwing a world of light on intricate and complex subjects, which have engaged the best intellects for ages past. Yet grand and comprehensive as it is in application and in effect, it is so simple as explained and illustrated by the Lecturer, that no servers of earlings and the same of medicated liquors. Cure for Scarlet Fever.
Dr. W. F. Corley, of this city, an old and well-known physician, hands us a copy of the Medical Brief, con taining the following recipe, which having used with success he fully indorses and recommends:

endorses and recommends:

Dr. Pigeon says:

The marveious success which has attended my treatment of scarlet fever by sulphur induces me to let my medical brethren know of my plan, so that they may be able to apply the same remedy without delay. All the cases in which I used it were very well marked, and the spidermiss on the arms in each case came away like the skin of a snake. The following was the exact treatment followed in each case: Thoroughly anoint the patient twice daily with sulphur olution; give five to ten grains of in each case: Thoroughly anoint the patient twice daily with sulphing ointment; give five to ten grains of sulphur in a little jam three times a day. Sufficient sulphur was burned twice daily (on coals on a shovel), to fill the room with the fumes, and, of course, was thoroughly inhaled by the patient. Under this mode of treatment each case improved immediately, and none were over eight days in making a complete recovery; and I firmly believe in each it was prevented from spreading by the treatment adopted. One case was in a large school.

Having had a large experience in scarlet fever last year and this, I feel some confidence in my own judgment, and I am of opinion that the very mildest cases I ever saw do not do half so well as bad cases do by the sulphur treatment, and, as far as I can judge, sulphur is as near a specific for scarlet fever as possible.
